Sagacious Lu's Famous Monk Spade

"Battle at Twin Dragon Peak"

Direct from the pages of the Classical Chinese Novel from the 12th Century: Water-Margin (simplified Chinese: 水浒传; traditional Chinese: 水滸傳; pinyin: Shuǐhǔ Zhuàn), also translated as Outlaws of the Marsh, Tale of the Marshes or All Men Are Brothers...

The Story & Legend of One of it's Most Famous and Colorful characters. (Chapters #3-7)

Lu Da and also known as Lu "Zhishen", which means "sagacious", is one of the 108 Heros of the Song Dynasty. Also nicknamed "The Flowery Monk" because of his tattoos.

He is a sworn brother of the martial artist Zhou Tong, who trained both the Song Dynasty general Yue Fei and another "Hero" Wu Song.

Regarding the design and shape of the Classical Monk Spade, one side has a spade shaped head and other a crescent moon.

The Monk Spade is a famous weapon of the Shaolin Temple. One of the 18 Classical Weapons!

Though it did serve to protect the wielder on journeys, its secondary use was to fulfill the monk's religious responsibility to the dead by burying them. Due to its fan-like shape, the Monk Spade performed ably as a shovel for digging, hence its name.
